

Distributed Microwave System

Abstract

A distributed microwave system comprising a single microwave source that can be used to supply one or more microwave-using devices. The microwave source is located remotely from the microwave-using devices and connected thereto by a microwave conduit.